RISCOS CIBERNÉTICOS

A temática dos riscos cibernéticos é cada vez mais atual e relevante para a sociedade e, em particular, para os setores supervisionados pela ASF. Com efeito, a digitalização da economia e a intensificação do recurso às tecnologias de informação e comunicação, com todos os benefícios que daí decorrem, tem como reverso o aumento da exposição àquele tipo de riscos, que podem ter origem em incidentes operacionais ou atos maliciosos.

No caso do setor segurador, releva o facto de que os riscos cibernéticos são potencialmente seguráveis e podem afetar as empresas de seguros numa dupla vertente - operacional e de negócio. A crescente procura por seguros que cubram estes riscos representa um desafio para as entidades do setor, dadas as suas especificidades.

É neste contexto que tem vindo a intensificar-se a investigação e a produção de literatura sobre riscos cibernéticos. Consciente desta realidade, a ASF tem procurado assegurar o enriquecimento do seu acervo bibliográfico com vários tipos de documentos relacionados com esta matéria.

Em 1787, James Allan Park, advogado em Londres, incentivado pelo seu amigo e patrono Lord Mansfield, publicou um tratado sobre direito de seguro marítimo, apresentando de forma sistematizada as decisões judiciais sobre esta matéria. Escrito, em grande parte, com base nos pareceres e decisões de Lord Mansfield, revelou-se uma obra útil e de referência, tendo sido sucessivamente reeditada.

Em 1821, António Julião da Costa, cônsul português em Liverpool, traduziu este tratado, a partir da sétima edição inglesa, revelando a importância deste tema para a economia portuguesa. Por outro lado, apelou a uma reorganização da atividade seguradora em Portugal, a começar pela elaboração de regras claras que seriam incluídas num Código Marítimo.

António Julião da Costa refere que deu preferência à tradução desta obra "(...) por ser a edição mais recente que existe; por consequência a que contem as ultimas deciziones judiciais, e por isso as que mais interessão; he indisputável tão bem que Mr. Park foi o promeiro que fez públicos em Inglaterra os princípios fixos es estabelecidos dos seguros, arranjando sistematicamente as diferentes questoens judiciais, athé então dispersas, e não conhecidas; a sua Introducção hé igualmente hum compendio histórico sobre os seguros, tão importante, como sabiamente escripto".
